- Although the course covers the elements above, experience and customer/user requirements often dictates that a level of flexibility is required.
- The Trainers have a wealth of Local Government experience and can therefore tailor the training course to exact needs and often train on the customer's data.
- Each delegate will also receive a set of distance training notes. These are not used during the course but are for the delegate to take away with them and act as a memory jog and learning aid when back at their desks.
